

Your Leadership Reset Report

Hi Jane,

Participant: Jane • Date: 17 Sept 2026

Thanks for taking the time to work through this. What follows is a first read on how decisions get made in your leadership team right now — not a verdict, and not the full picture. Think of it as a starting point for a conversation, not the end of one.

66 / 91 (73%)

AMBER — Patterns worth exploring

Your team operates with moderate alignment, but unvoiced perspectives or leader signaling may be hindering full potential.

Where the room stands, by theme

These three areas each capture a different part of how decisions actually get made in your team — who speaks, who's heard, and how your own signals shape the room.

Two shifts worth trying

1. LEADER SIGNALS

Run your next complex decision with a round where everyone states their view in writing before you share yours.
2. DECISION MAKING

In your next leadership meeting, deliberately vary who speaks first on the agenda — rotate it away from the usual senior voice.

Small, specific shifts like these tend to move the needle faster than a big restructure — that's deliberate. Try one at a time.

LEAN IN COACHING

Small practical shifts. Not complexity.

Diagnostic Answers & Response Breakdown

Diagnostic Questions & Selected Answers

Q1. [DECISION MAKING] Question 1	Score: 0
Selected: No response provided
Q2. [DECISION MAKING] Question 2	Score: 0
Selected: No response provided
Q3. [DECISION MAKING] Question 3	Score: 0
Selected: No response provided
Q4. [DECISION MAKING] Question 4	Score: 0
Selected: No response provided
Q5. [CONVERSATION PATTERNS] Question 5	Score: 0
Selected: No response provided
Q6. [CONVERSATION PATTERNS] Question 6	Score: 0
Selected: No response provided
Q7. [CONVERSATION PATTERNS] Question 7	Score: 0
Selected: No response provided
Q8. [CONVERSATION PATTERNS] Question 8	Score: 0
Selected: No response provided
Q9. [LEADER SIGNALS] Question 9	Score: 0
Selected: No response provided
Q10. [LEADER SIGNALS] Question 10	Score: 0
Selected: No response provided
Q11. [LEADER SIGNALS] Question 11	Score: 0
Selected: No response provided

LEAN IN COACHING

Small practical shifts. Not complexity.

Q12. [LEADER SIGNALS]

Question 12

Score: 0

Selected: No response provided

What this doesn't tell you

This snapshot is based on your own view of your team. It's a useful starting point, but it doesn't capture what your team would say if asked the same questions — which is often where the real insight is. That's exactly what a full Leadership Reset conversation is designed to surface.

Book a 20-minute conversation !'

No pressure, no pitch. Just a chance to look at what you've found together and figure out if it's worth going further.